

Kinga Gortel | DVM, MS, Diplomate ACVD | British Columbia

Dr. Kinga Gortel practices veterinary dermatology in the Okanagan Valley and several other locations in BC and Alberta. She spent seven years in a multi-dermatologist practice in southern California before relocating to Kelowna, BC. Kinga is a graduate of the Western College of Veterinary Medicine. She became board certified by the American College of Veterinary Dermatology after completing an internship, dermatology residency, and master's degree program at the University of Illinois in 1999. In addition to clinical practice, Kinga is a lecturer at the Western College of Veterinary Medicine and past Adjunct Assistant Professor at the University of Calgary. She has authored scientific articles and book chapters in the field of veterinary dermatology, and is an active lecturer who enjoys providing continuing education to veterinarians in Canada, the US, and Europe. Kinga has served on the Examination Committee of the American College of Veterinary Dermatology and is the President of the Canadian Academy of Veterinary Dermatology.