

Canadian Academy of Veterinary Dermatology

Free CAVD student membership

Dear Students,

It's OK to like dermatology. And I hope you do! Because once you graduate, you will see a lot of it. According to pet insurance data, skin and ear problems top the list of reasons why dog owners visit their veterinarians.

And yet, new vets often tell me that they wish they were better at dermatology. So we're here to help! The Canadian Academy of Veterinary Dermatology (CAVD) aims to advance the practice of veterinary dermatology in Canada. And we would love to have you as a student member.

The CAVD can help grow your derm knowledge while fitting into a busy student schedule. We publish a bi-annual Bulletin and regular e-newsletters with the latest updates in our field. We're compiling a members-only question bank to help you study for exams. And because skin diseases involve microbiology, parasitology, immunology, endocrinology, oncology, surgery, and pathology, we can help you learn these subjects, too. You'll help us in return, as a robust membership lets us advocate for the importance of dermatology in continuing education and research.

We know that vet school can leave you short on time AND cash. So we have made CAVD membership free for all veterinary students in Canada. Join us at www.cavd.ca. Follow us on Facebook for more great content, tips, and all the dermatology you can handle. It's OK to like dermatology. And we know you'll like the CAVD, too!

Kinga

Kinga Gortel DVM, MS, Diplomate ACVD
President, CAVD

